LAST EDITION. VANE MILBANK DEAD.

The Duellist Who Figured in the Drayton-Borrowe Scandal.

Passes Away at a Resort Where He Sought Restored Health.

Son of an English Nobleman and Spender of One Big Fortune.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—It is announced that Harry Vane Milbank, the duellist, who gained considerable notoriety through his connection with the Coleman Drayton-Borrowe scandal, died on Monday.

His death occurred at Davos-Platz, the capital of the district of that name in the Canton of Grisons, Switzerland. The place is a favorite summer and winter resort.

Mr. Milbank had been in the place for some time and had gone to Davos-Platz in the hope of recovering his health.

He was addicted to the morphine habit and this helped to shatter his constitution.

Mr. Milbank was introduced prominently before the American public by his connection with the most unfortunate Drayton-Borrowe scandal.

He was the friend of Hallett Alsop Borrowe and would probably have been his second had matters come to a duellistic pass between that gentleman and Mr. J. Coleman Drayton. He visited Mr. Borrowe in this country last April, just after the revelation of the scandal, and did not escape the notice of the press.

Mr. Milbank was reputed to have been engaged in a considerable number of duels, some reports putting the count as high as sixteen or eighteen. On each of four occasions he killed his man.

To an interviewer Mr. Milbank said: "I am very unwilling to talk upon the subject of my duels, and you must pardon me for it. I very deeply regret that three or four of them have resulted fatally. I was dragged into almost all of them against my will. I have fought duels in Russia, Germany and France, and, as I have already said, I regret that only too many of them have resulted fatally."

A report that once upon the Russian frontier he successfully fought and killed the husband, brother and father of a lady who lived on the estate of a young man and was the subject of several reports to the effect that he had fought or was to fight against the lady's father, but, instead, her husband, brother and brother-in-law.

Mr. Milbank was an Englishman by birth, but lived on the estate of a young man and was the subject of several reports to the effect that he had fought or was to fight against the lady's father, but, instead, her husband, brother and brother-in-law.

He owned racing stables at times in England, Germany and France, and, while not known as a pugilist, was a constant player at most of the games of the European continent. He went the pace as few, even of his own countrymen, have done.

Milbank was a son of Sir Frederick Milbank and a grandson of Mark Milbank, who married the daughter of the first Duke of Cleveland. His sister is the wife of Sir John Milbank, a German nobleman, who is a brother-in-law of the Duke of Hamilton. The young man had spent much of his life in the army and was then possessed of a large income, but a short time before he died he had lost it all.

He was the subject of several reports to the effect that he had fought or was to fight against the lady's father, but, instead, her husband, brother and brother-in-law.

Threatened Cotton-Spinners' Strike Involving 52,000 Persons.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—With a view to avoiding the calamitous effects that would follow the threatened strike among the cotton operatives of the Lancashire and Yorkshire and Manchester districts, the employers are trying to induce the disputants to consent to arbitrating their differences. The opinion is that the negotiations will prove fruitless.

It is estimated that the threatened strike will affect 13,000,000 spindles, and that 52,000 persons, a large portion of whom are women and children, will be idle.

LAWYER DEVLIN WILL DIE.

The Police Investigating His Mysterious Shooting.

Was It an Accident or an Attempted Suicide?

Detective Garvey, of the West One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street police station, is trying to-day to unravel the mystery surrounding the shooting of Charles S. Devlin at his home, 128 West One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street.

Devlin was taken to the Manhattan Hospital at an early hour yesterday morning, suffering from a pistol shot wound in his right breast. The bullet had gone clear through the lung and the surgeons agreed that the wound was mortal.

At the hospital Devlin told the House Surgeon that he had accidentally shot himself while handling a revolver.

Dr. Penn, the Superintendent of the hospital, told an Evening World reporter this morning that he believed the patient's story and was convinced that the shooting was not done with suicidal intent.

"Mrs. Devlin, wife of the injured man," said Dr. Penn, "called at the hospital yesterday and related all the circumstances, which were in substance that Devlin came home about midnight Monday in an intoxicated condition.

While thus engaged she was startled by a loud report. Finding this to be the sound of a shot, she rushed into the dining-room, saw her husband lying on the floor, and knew that he had been shot. She called for help and summoned a neighbor, in which the wounded man was conveyed to the hospital.

Mr. Devlin denies that he had been drinking. He says that he was simply hungry. He says that he was sitting up waiting for him in the dining-room. After a half hour's conversation Mrs. Devlin went into another room to put her baby to bed, leaving her husband alone.

There are a number of witnesses who saw Mr. Devlin at the time of the shooting. They are a number of non-union laborers who were working at the time of the shooting. They are a number of non-union laborers who were working at the time of the shooting.

He Created a Panic Among the 'Longshoremen.' There was one passenger on the White Star steamship Tauric, from Liverpool, this morning, whose arrival was not the occasion of a trip down the bay with a brass band and champagne luncheon. Neither was his debarkation at the company's dock attended by hundreds of friends who hurried him away in a cab to a hotel.

It is true that this passenger attracted no end of attention and appeared in need of a touch, with or without "fix," and yet everybody who saw him rushed madly in an opposite direction, as if the newcomer had small-pox or Asiatic cholera. But he hadn't.

He was a bygone and in the United States this brute is something of a terror. He banged and bargained about his case in a way that endeared the people to his ears, and he was a walk-out seemed imminent and the foreman said: "If you don't get out of here, I'll call the police."

With Mr. Hyena was a box of fruit, a large number of cigars, and a case of wine. Three monkeys were consigned to William J. Connelley, of Philadelphia.

BUILDERS TO GO OUT.

Labor Trouble in Brooklyn May Involve Many Trades.

Non-Union Wages the Principal Grievance of the Strikers.

Action of the Carpenters of Some Political Significance.

Trouble is brewing between Brooklyn contractors and the building trades. A strike of the framers and carpenters employed by Charles Hart on twenty buildings has already been ordered, and if a settlement is not effected soon the strike will extend to other trades. It may also be given a political turn on account of the fact that Contractor Hart does a great deal of city and county work, and also because if the strike extends an effort will be made to force Postmaster Collins to employ union men on a big flat building he is having erected at Tompkins and Varian streets.

The latter building is being erected under the supervision of Architect Ackers, who has subcontracted the work to Builder Schneider. The latter employs no union men and it is claimed Postmaster Collins knew this before giving him the contract.

Delegate T. Gorman, of the Brotherhood of Carpenters, said this morning that Mr. Collins must have known that Builder Schneider is an enemy of union labor when giving the contract to him.

Mr. Collins told an Evening World reporter that Architect Ackers had charged of the work, and he knew nothing about any trouble.

Contractor Hart has hitherto employed union men, but he is said to be preparing to neglect this policy. He has been doing some work at the County Farm at St. John's Island, and a committee from the building trades went there this morning to see if the work could be tied up.

There are a number of grievances against Hart, the most recent of which was the employment of non-union labor rates for $2.75 a day, the most recent of which was the employment of non-union labor rates for $2.75 a day.

10 000 GRAIN CARS BLOCKED. Elevators Filled and No Place to Unload Trains in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—There are 10,000 loaded grain cars in Chicago and there is no place to unload them. Every elevator is crammed to the eaves. Few of the shippers are inclined to pay the rate and a majority do not care to take it at any price.

Law transportation is not available, as every elevator from Toledo to Buffalo is full. It is believed that much of the result is due to prices yesterday for both futures and cash. A lower price in the future in the history of the market.

Stocks are said to be enormous everywhere and constantly increasing at a rate that is truly astonishing. The wheat market is the largest of all, and yesterday aggregated 3,228,740 bushels, as compared with 2,000,000 bushels a year ago.

It is true that this passenger attracted no end of attention and appeared in need of a touch, with or without "fix," and yet everybody who saw him rushed madly in an opposite direction, as if the newcomer had small-pox or Asiatic cholera. But he hadn't.

The White Star steamship Teutonic, due from Liverpool to-day, had not been reported up to 11 o'clock this morning. Officials of the company think she has been delayed by rough weather.

FOUR DEAD BY FIRE. Wagon Family Perishes in an Early Blaze in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 26.—A fire occurred about 1.30 o'clock this morning in a two-story frame building at the corner of Central Avenue and Harriet street by which an entire family, consisting of James Shannon, his wife and two little boys, perished.

In half of the lower portion of the building was a wagon, owned by Shannon and his family. The members of the family were all probably overcome by the smoke before the flames reached them.

The front half of the building was completely destroyed and the four bodies were buried in the burned timbers. Shannon was thirty-eight years old and his wife was thirty-two. The eldest son, James, Jr., was six years old, and John, the youngest, four years.

Shannon's sister-in-law, Miss Sarah McGinty, lived with them, but attended a dance last night and had not returned when the fire occurred. Shannon's business partner, John McGinty, was his brother-in-law.

Another family lived in the rear of the building downstairs, comprising U. H. Babcock and his wife. They were awakened by the smell of smoke and escaped from the house, though almost suffocated.

The loss by the fire on the building and contents is placed at $3,000.

ALL WAITING ON THE EXPERTS. No Developments To-Day in the Burkhalter Failure.

The only door open this morning at the store of C. Burkhalter & Co., 121 Hudson street, was zealously guarded by one of Assignee Fancher's deputies, who said he had strict orders not to admit any one today or until after the expert accountants, who are busy with the books, had finished their work.

Messrs. Stern & Hunkeler, lawyers for Burkhalter & Co., had received no more news of the high bidder or of any other bids for the property of the failed firm. They expected no news until after the examination of the books is completed.

Joseph is supposed to be insane. He wore a light blue suit, wore a bow tie, and carried a sword.

NOTARIES SELL SEALED BLANKS. Certain Public Bodies in Brooklyn are Charged by the Board of Health of that City with Furnishing Ship Brokers and Ship Captains with Blank Forms Bearing their Signatures and Seals.

Captains, on coming into port, instead of complying with the law requiring them to make affidavits before a notary as to the health of their ship's company on the voyage, merely fill in one of the blanks, already bearing a notary's name and seal, and present it to the health department.

Many of such officers have been named by the Board of Health. The explanation is that no notary is to be found in the city. It is alleged that the blanks which the captains had just filled in were the seal and name of John W. Brown, of 40 South street, New York, a notary of long standing.

Mr. Quake explained that he had signed and attached the seal to the affidavits exposing the captain to come into the office and fill it out, but that one of his office boys, supposing it was all right, had given it to the stevedores.

This explanation was apparently satisfactory to the Board of Health, and the case was said to be closed.

CHANDLER, Ind., Oct. 26.—Is a gravel pit along the high banks of Sugar Creek two or three miles from the town of Chandler, Ind., where the bones of mammoths have been found, and the unburying of these mammoth bones is still going on.

The last skeleton taken out measured seven feet in length. The femur and the pelvic bones are twice as large as those of an ordinary man. The grinding skull contained a set of teeth of a size and shape of which no other animal is known.

The whole number of skeletons thus far found only two in this Indiana gravel pit. The remainder representing the fragments of a few more evidently extinct prehistoric animals in which the characteristic development of giants has been observed.

BLUE FOR THE G. O. P.

Democratic Canvassers Report on Indiana and Virginia.

Quay's Hand on the Helm at Republican Headquarters.

Mr. Brookfield Thinks Harrison Will Gain Largely Up the State.

The gentlemen who early in the campaign wanted to know "what was the matter with Tammany Hall" received the assurance this morning that Tammany was "all right." If there was any doubt as to the Wigwag's loyalty to the National Democratic ticket it was dispelled last night by the hearty and unqualified endorsement it gave the Democratic ticket at its ratification meeting.

Mr. Croker said this morning that the demonstration was no doubt worth thousands of votes to the local and National tickets. He was more than ever encouraged by the outlook.

Senator Hill's speech will be used as a vote-counter in the country, where it will be circulated as a campaign document. Senator Hill is now on his way to Lynchburg, Va., where he will make a speech for the cause. He is also booked for speeches at Port Jervis, Syracuse and Albany before the election.

The meeting last night has given renewed stimulus to the Democratic canvass in this city, and at headquarters they are more than ever confident that New York State is sure for Cleveland.

Cheering news was received this morning from Indiana and Virginia. Vice-President Morton to be a bearer at Mrs. Harrison's funeral, taking the place of Secretary Charles Foster, of the Treasury Department, who is the only one of the Cabinet officers not expected to be present at the services to-morrow morning.
